REBEKAH GREGORY

USING PAIN TO FIND YOUR PURPOSE

In 2013, Rebekah and her then five-year-old son were three feet away from the first bomb that detonated at the Boston Marathon. Since Rebekah's son was sitting at her feet, Rebekah's body acted as a human shield and ultimately spared her son's life. Rebekah went on to have a grueling recovery, and eventually lost her left leg below the knee.

Instead of being bitter, Rebekah used her struggles as leverage to a greater purpose. She decided to do everything on an artificial leg that she hadn't done on two real ones, and in 2015, Rebekah returned to the Boston marathon, this time as a runner, and crossed the finish line on her prosthesis.

This speech is a detailed look back on the day of the Boston Marathon bombing, Rebekah's extensive recovery time, and the perspective that she gained from it all. Rebekah encourages listeners to look at their own "blow ups" in life, and to decide if they are going to be defeated by their challenges or use them to become stronger. Rebekah also reviews the role her life has taken since the bombing—testifying in the trial of the remaining bomber, becoming a huge advocate for mental health, and creating her non-profit, Rebekah's Angels Foundation to provide mental health treatment for children and families suffering from their own trauma.

Rebekah Gregory

Rebekah Gregory is a wife and mother whose life was forever changed due to the bombings at the Boston Marathon on April 15, 2013. This act of terrorism may have claimed her leg, but it could not claim her spirit. Since then, Rebekah has used her platform in a huge way by traveling all over the country speaking out against evil, and encouraging people to turn their obstacles into opportunities.

In 2017, Rebekah had her first book "Taking My Life Back" published. Shortly after, she launched Rebekah's Angels Foundation, which she and her husband created to aid in the treatment of childhood PTSD.

Rebekah and her college sweetheart-turned-husband Chris, live in Orlando FL with their two beautiful children, Ryleigh and Noah, their dog Bear, and their talking parrot, Captain Jack Sparrow.
